

Appendix to:

Creating Crystal Jewelry with Swarovski: 65 Sparkling Designs with Crystal Beads and Stones by Laura McCabe

In order to help you better reproduce the projects as shown in this book, I have provided you with a complete appendix of every bead and stone used in each sample shown in the book. Please note that due to multiple numbering systems, it is very hard to provide definite color numbers for seed beads. Both importers and bead stores are inclined to use their own numbering systems for inventory purposes. Because of this, I have opted first to use the original factory number for the color. In this case, you will find the beads listed as either M### or T###. The M stands for Miyuki company beads. The T stands for Toho company beads. After each number, you will find a general color description in parentheses. In cases where I was unable to track down the original factory color number (this was only the case with the Miyuki beads), you will find the color denoted as M*###. The asterisk indicates this is a renumbering of the bead color, but I have provided the most common renumber under which you are most likely to find the bead listed.

Swarovski crystal beads and stones are listed by article number, size, and color. When the color is followed by double asterisks (), it indicates an after-market finish, not applied by Swarovski itself, but rather by Swarovski distributors.

There are certain colors and materials that I use over and over again throughout the book. In order to assist in tracking down some of these colors, we have set up a specialized section on our website where you can purchase seed beads, as well as some of the crystal items used in this book. You will find our online shop at www.justletmebead.com.
